

The Pitch to prospective pastors,

December 17, 2020

Santa Maria, California is a small city located near the state's central coast. A Mediterranean climate characterizes the beautiful hills and valleys. Five beaches are within a thirty minute drive, ranging from undeveloped dunes, to rugged coastline, to quaint seaside villages and ports.

The city of Santa Maria maintains a pro-growth attitude and has seen a lot of development, both residential and commercial, over the last fifteen years. It has retained much of its small town charm while developing into a commercial and retail hub for the central coast.

Our church building (well, the one we are renting from the Korean Adventists) is located in an unincorporated part of Santa Maria known as Orcutt on the southern side of the city. The community is largely residential and agricultural and is home to many of the cities best performing schools and it's airport.

Our CIF will supply you with details of our church, so suffice it here to say that we are faithful group of God's people working toward greater engagement in the work of the kingdom. We are seeking a pastor not to revolutionize us but to faithfully preach the Word, building us up, instructing us, and challenging us to know and love our Lord and our community better.

We wish we could offer more to our potential pastor. We are a small church. But we believe that whoever pastors us next will be blessed by the experience.

We would love to hear from you. Any information about yourself and your family, your theological background and convictions, your call to ministry and your shoe size (just kidding) can be emailed to info@heritageepc.org , or snail-mailed to Heritage EPC, 4799 S. Bradley Rd, Santa Maria, CA, 93455.

Blessings.

P.S. Here's the link to the church website. It's just an introduction.
